A Message from Our Pastor

During the summer months, we had an opportunity to change our routine. We had vacations where we learned, played, and rested. Our church routine changed as well. First, we had the chance to come together as one for worship. In our blended service, we connected with people who attend services other than ours, and we explored new worship styles together. Several members commented about how good it was to be together and how a full church enhanced the worship experience. Second, we found ways to open our doors and our lives to our neighbors through ministries including but not limited to: Vacation Bible School, the Green Team's gardening programs, the Baltimore County Christian Work Camp, Eastern Regional Shelter (school supplies), and the Children's Carnival. Our summer changes refreshed, renewed, and reinvigorated us in loving God and neighbor.

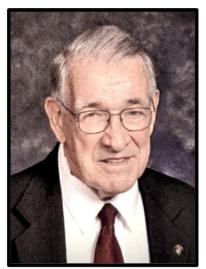

Now the question becomes: how do we offer our summer fruits beyond the church walls? God calls us as individuals and as a congregation to unique and varied ministries and missions. This is the time to prayerfully and carefully consider God's next steps for you. Is God calling you to step out in faith and serve in a new mission or ministry? Perhaps God is asking you to trust in God's provision and freely offer your time, talent, and treasure to a ministry? Is God through the Holy Spirit nudging you to spend more time in prayer for your family, friends, and our neighbors? Is God asking you to give up your hesitation to join a study? Has Jesus called you to invite others into the life of the church by inviting someone to the monthly JOY (Just Older Youth) gathering, bringing a guest to a church dinner or concert, or inviting someone to help you in a mission outreach? For those unconnected to a church or unsure about their faith, these small invitations can become life-changing moments.

Peace, Carol

DEPARTED

Robert Lloyd (Bob) White July 24, 1931 – July 30, 2025

Bob peacefully transitioned to his eternal home at age 94 at Parkridge Assisted Living in Peoria, Arizona.

Born and raised in Baltimore, he served in the US Marine Corps from 1952 to 1954. He fought in the Korean War with the 1st Marine Division, HQ Battalion Air/Naval Gunfire Platoon and was honorably discharged. He retired from CSX Railroad after 40 years as a Director of Property and Casualty Insurance.

In his time at Camp Chapel, Bob contributed his knowledge and talents in many ways. He sang in the Chancel Choir for many years, served as Lay Leader, was a longtime valued member of the Trustees and also served on the building committee. He shared his vast knowledge of property insurance to guide our decisions and choices. A kind gentleman and devoted congregant, Bob always greeted you with a smile.

Bob was preceded in death by his beloved wife, Beulah Joan White. He was the devoted father of Robert White and his wife Rhonda, and David White and his wife Kathy. He was beloved by his four grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

BISHOP TO VISIT RESERVOIR DISTRICT

Bishop LaTrelle Miller Easterling has announced plans to visit the Reservoir District of our Baltimore-Washington Conference.

In case you missed it, as of July 1, the districts within the Baltimore-Washington Conference were reorganized, and Camp Chapel is now part of the Reservoir District (prior to July 1, we were in the Baltimore Suburban district).

On Wednesday, September 17, at 7:00 pm, Bishop Easterling will meet with the laity and clergy of the district at Fallston UMC for a time of sharing and interaction. This is seen as an important time of connection, not just with our bishop, but also with the clergy and laity of other churches within our district as the new organizational structure takes effect and with our new District Superintendent, Rev. Eliezer Valentin-Castañón.

Fallston UMC is located at 1509 Fallston Rd., Fallston, MD 21047.

CAMP CHAPEL'S WORKING HANDS

Another Baltimore County Christian Workcamp project is now under our (tool) belts, and a job well done as we "ramped" up another home in Baltimore County. Yes, it was another hot day in July when our team arrived to construct a handicap ramp for a home in Dundalk. The homeowner, "Miss Suzie" was thrilled with the result which she will need to use very soon, and she couldn't believe that such an energetic team showed up to make her entry and exit to her home safer. Of course, we made it clear that we were working in the name of God's glory.

A great big shout-out of thanks goes to participating team members: Ryan Bird, Josh and Keith Klemm, Dan Pazdersky, Pat and Mike Ryan, Jacob and Jonathan Smith, and Rita Talley. Special thanks to Kathy Whitson who collected money for and brought our lunch.

From the Church Historian

Church History: Our Pastors, 1963 - 1984

The Reverend Luther Starnes served Camp chapel from 1963-1969. He came from Delaware where he married his wife Joyce in a little stone church. They had two sons, Jimmy and Jeffrey. His grandfather, James Thomas Starnes, was from Tennessee where he worked building bridges. Rev. Starnes' father was born and grew up in Tennessee.

Rev. Starnes

Upon his arrival at Camp Chapel, he was involved in the planning stages of the new church. On Sunday, May 24, 1964, he officiated at the groundbreaking service and was here during the construction. In the fall of 1964, he officiated at the laying of the cornerstone. Also, present at that service was the previous pastor, Rev. Carroll Warner, who was pastor when the plans were approved for the construction.

He was here when the church celebrated its 150th Anniversary in the fall of 1963. He returned several times as a guest preacher and participated in the church historical celebration held in 2007.

His brother, Rev. Thomas Starnes was also an ordained pastor in the Baltimore Conference and in 1980 was assigned a special appointment as director of Public Information for the Maryland Department of Human Resources.

In the 1980s, Rev. Starnes hosted a popular nighttime radio talk show. He also wrote several books. He and his wife Joyce moved to Howard County where in 2004 he was pastor at Gary United Methodist Church in Ellicott City, Maryland.

Rev. Eldon C. Watts was assigned pastor from 1969 to 1971. He was followed by Rev. William Balderson in 1971 to 1974. Unfortunately, I have not been able to locate any background information in the history files about these two pastors.

Rev. Watts

Rev. Balderson

In 1974, Rev. William (Bill) Preston Wyatt was assigned to Camp Chapel at the age of twenty-six. He served for ten years when he was transferred in 1984. He and his wife Linda Wiley Wyatt were the proud parents of three children: daughter, Laura and sons, Joshua and Andrew. During his service here, the Administrative Board approved having two services in 1982 on Sundays: the Chapel Service at 8:30 am and the 11:00 am service in the main sanctuary. As mentioned in a previous article, his family was living in the parsonage when they were awakened by the fire in the Chapel in 1983.

He was here when the church celebrated its 170th Anniversary in 1983 and in the fall of 2007, he participated in the church historical celebration.

Rev. Wyatt

During his ministry, he served seven United Methodist Churches throughout the Baltimore-Washington Conference. The last church he served was Montgomery United Methodist Church in Damascus, Maryland. Sadly, he passed away just a month after he had been here on November 26, 2007 at the age of 59.

His wife Linda had been very active in the work of the Board of Child Care.

Bits and Pieces

Mmmmmmmm... Steamed Crabs!

I'm not sure, but this may be a first. I don't think that I have ever gotten inspiration for one of my essays from an advertisement for an event elsewhere in the Acorn, but in this issue of the newsletter, we announce an upcoming event, a crab feast on October 4, and for some reason, while I was editing that page, my mind kind of took off. The menu includes pulled pork and roast chicken, but the star of the day is crabs. I love crabs!

Crabs. Maryland steamed crabs. Yum! Number ones, big and heavy, juicy and spicy, expensive and delicious, and oh, so labor intensive! Is there anything more iconically Maryland than perfectly seasoned, perfectly steamed blue crabs? Is there anything more satisfying than pulling off that backfin and getting a couple of ounces of sweet, succulent, tender meat in one gigantic hunk?

A Pile of Maryland's Best! Ready for Picking!

Oh, and crab soup! The menu for the crab feast includes crab soup! Food of the gods! Velvety broth bursting with vegetables and tomatoes and crabmeat and spice and flavor! Heavenly! And jumbo lump crab cakes! They aren't on the menu for October 4th, but they are indeed the king of them all! From Jimmy's or the Costas Inn or Faidley's or Koco's or Pappas or G&M! Rejoice my tastebuds! Rejoice, William, that you were blessed the day you were born to grow up and have lived your life in Maryland, a state cleft by the bountiful Chesapeake Bay, in – to borrow a phrase – the Land of Pleasant Living! There's no place like this for these treasures from the waters! In places like Florida and Massachusetts, they claim to be big on seafood, but they boil crabs there! Boil them! Abomination! ABOMINATION!

Okay, let me catch my breath before I begin gnashing my teeth and rending my garments.

My mind then took me in this direction: what if we could invite Jesus to the crab feast to share with us some of the bounty God has bestowed upon us? I mean I know I'd be happy to plunk down sixty bucks for the opportunity to crack a few crab shells with my Lord and Savior, wouldn't you? Heck, it'd be my pleasure to foot the bill for God's only Son if I had the chance! His meal would be on me! How do you think that would work out?

Let me tell you how.

Jesus would give thanks, then he would politely decline the invitation! Yeah, that's exactly what he would do.

You see, we usually think of Jesus as the founder of our Christian religion. Our religion has his name on it, after all. But Jesus himself was not a Christian. Jesus was a devout Jew. He was born of a Jewish mother. He was circumcised according to Jewish law when he was six days old. He worshipped God with his family and other Jews in Jewish temples and synagogues. He studied the Torah and other Hebrew Scriptures and was apparently something of a prodigy. He observed all Jewish holidays and customs. We are not told of this specifically, but his mother must surely have kept a kosher household. He became a rabbi. He was Jewish from the day he was born until the day he died. His last meal on earth was a Passover celebration – a seder meal. As he hung on his cross, with his final breaths he quoted verses from the psalms.

Above all, at least insofar as the point of this essay is concerned, he observed the Jewish dietary laws. That means that, among other prohibitions, he could eat no land animals that do not have cloven hooves and chew the cud and no animals from the sea that do not have fins and scales. He ate no crabs, so no steamed crabs nor soft crabs nor crab soup nor crab cakes... no lobsters, so no lobster bisque nor lobster rolls nor lobster with drawn butter... no mussels... no oysters, so no oyster stew nor oysters Rockefeller nor fried oysters nor oysters on the half shell... no clams, so no clam strips nor clams casino nor clam chowder (neither Manhattan nor New England style)... no crayfish, so no crawfish etouffee nor crawfish boulettes nor crawfish macquechou... no pork, so no bacon nor ham nor pork loin nor roast suckling pig... no escargot... no shrimp, so no shrimp scampi nor shrimp salad sandwiches nor steamed shrimp nor shrimp cocktail nor shrimp creole nor coconut shrimp nor bang-bang shrimp nor shrimp on the barbie...

I'll stop there before this begins to look like a transcript of a scene from Forest Gump, but I think you get the idea. Jesus would probably not want to spend sixty bucks to eat just the chicken, especially since there's a KFC nearby.

Many of the people who followed Jesus during his ministry on earth revered him as a prophet sent to the Jews by God to help them through troubling political times. From his own words, we get the feeling that, at least at the beginning of his ministry, his mission was to perfect the Jewish religion – to teach his fellow Jews a new way of experiencing their relationship with God. His followers were also Jewish, and after his death and resurrection, the twelve Apostles began their ministry, most of them assuming that they would be carrying on their master's work to reform and perfect Judaism. But some of them had another more expansive idea.

So, the very early church had two factions. One group of apostles, among them notably James the son of Alpheus, also called James the Just and James the Less, believed that to follow Christ, one must first become a Jew – to be circumcised if one were male, to follow Jewish law, observe Jewish ceremonies and practices. The only exception was that they had to believe that Jesus was God's Son.

The other group, which included Peter and Paul, eventually rejected that requirement and fully committed themselves to break with the religion that they had been practicing all their lives and begin something entirely new and different.

For the first group, it was important to them that they had been born and raised Jewish and Jesus had never said that his goal was to break away from Judaism – not in so many words, anyway.

For the second, they focused on the statement of Jesus that he was building something new, and on Jesus's commission to preach the Good News to all nations; that is, to the Gentiles as well as the Jews, and to baptize them into this new thing. Their reasoning was both theological: they understood that Jesus's teachings and preachings were so different from orthodox Jewish belief that there was no way it could ever be accepted into the framework of Judaism, and practical: to open the religion to non-Jews meant that what would eventually come to be known as Christianity had to be based on practices that a Gentile would be willing to accept. That meant no circumcision (because... owww!) and we can all eat what we want and work on the Sabbath and so on.

Obviously, the Judaizers – those who wanted all the converts to Christianity to first become Jews – lost that argument, thwarted in no small part by a vision that Peter experienced that he claimed to be from God. At the time of his vision, Peter wasn't fully committed to opening the new religion to the Gentiles. He saw a large blanket descending from heaven, and in it were all sorts of animals, many of them prohibited, or unclean. God commanded Peter to kill and eat, but he refused three times until he realized that God wasn't pranking him. Peter pondered his vision and eventually comes to several revelations, one of which was that Christians did not have to be Jews and that the law didn't apply to them anymore.

So, in a nutshell, that's why we can all enjoy a crab feast in October!

Now, there was an unintended consequence of Peter's preaching about this vision that is worth mentioning. When the fledgling Christian churches were informed that the laws of Moses no longer applied, some of them took that to mean, "Oh boy! We can do whatever we want now!" and they got up to all sorts of mischief, including adultery, pagan practices, and all sorts of other nasty stuff. You can read about this in many of Paul's epistles when he spends a few chapters rebuking churches for their sinful behavior, essentially reminding them that just because the laws of Moses no longer apply to them, they are still expected to obey the laws of Christ. But that's a discussion for a different essay.
